hat a time it was when all we had to worry about was having a good time. No cursed alarm clocks, just fun in the sun and a good time for everyone. But all good things must come to an end. So as August wore on and the first day of school approached, we teenagers had many tasks to complete. You know, hard tremendously demanding jobs like buying new clothes or maybe changing a few classes. The laid-back days of August couldn't last long, and as the twenty-seventh neared, students prepared for that instant in time when summer ends and school begins. For the sophomores it was a time for new experiences. For the juniors it was time to start growing up. And for the seniors it was time to begin their last year in high school - most definitely a time that they had been waiting for. The first day was fun. You might even say that the first month was fun, but as the dark days of winter approached and the gale winds of fall slowed our bikes and the torrents of rain blasted our windshields. things returned to how they had been. The heart rate of Chico High stabalized, and the students settled down and got to work. Summer was most definitely over.

ndoubtedly there is something special about atmosphere Chico High, It can be seen in the way students joke together during lunch and the comfortable way teachers conduct class. But above all it can be seen in the excited participation of students at rallies, on dress-up days, and at home games. What is this special something that many schools lack, but Chico High has in abundance? Spirit of course! Spirit, that intangible thing that makes students give up their free time to build a quad, Elise Burgstahler and Chris decorate a dance, and sit out in the cold and rain to cheer a football team on to victory. With the beginning of a new year came a flood of students with fresh ideas and an urge to show the world what spirit really is. For example, the sophomore class managed to win the football homecoming sweepstakes through tremendous participation and the juniors won the spirit stick by proving to spirit judge Harold Ferguson that they were the best. It takes more to make a school great than nice buildings, a pretty campus, or a large student body. It takes spirit, something which we at Chico High are lucky to have in great supply.

in order to make it to school before 7:00 and your classes seem to be low on desks as you try to find an empty one. What is going on? Depending on what grade the student was in there were some new changes in the curriculum, some for the sake of having to change, and some for the better. One of the biggest changes was making all the classes one minute longer. According to the California Legislature, California students seem to be behind other students in other states because they don't have the same amount of schooling time as the other students have

It gave the students a chance to take any extra solids or electives that wouldn't otherwise be available. Dominic DeBatte, junior, who has the early-bird class felt satisfied with the new system, "I can take this class now, get it out of the way, and have room for Photo J." With about 25 students and a growing interest for other early offerings, Chico High might offer other required classes next year at this early hour. around them. No matter what "kind" of person you are, Chico High has a place for you. With all the new ideas and interests of today, teenagers have grown with a stronger individual livilhood than ever before. They desire more freedom and hope for quicker opportunities as adulthood approaches. Chico High students not only desire and attain these goals but enjoy themselves along the way with an uncontrollable urge of competiveness that only prods them on.

From cow-jocks and punks to preppies and nerds, life is never a dull moment. Everyone seems to get along with everyone else; we're all united in a close family. This is what makes Chi High such a unified place, and it shows, through our clubs, in our classrooms, and on our sports teams. Even though we're all different, we all support our one thing in common; Chico Senior High.

baseball in the spring. Chico Sr. High excelled in sports. The CHS athletic teams travelled from town to town showing people everywhere their great athletic abilities. It all started in early fall, where we found ourselves cheering on our football, tennis, x-country, and hockey teams. All the teams did very well. The varsity football team had a super season and went to the playoffs. The varsity hockey team came in second in the EAL and the j.v. hockey team won the EAL championships 10-0. X-country ran their way to a successful season and tennis didn't have much trouble show-rom football in the fall, to ing off their great abilities. We tried out. As basketball and good. As the weather grew outside. Continued colder we found ourselves moving indoors. Winter had come upon us and so had basketball and wrestling. The basketball team was awesome with a large number of returning players and a few new ones. It was exciting to watch the "Red Machine" start back up again for another fantastic season. Wrestling was also very exciting, especially with the new group of members that spring came three more sports. It was time for baseball, softball, boys' tennis, and track. The baseball teams were terrific. They dominated every team they played. drove as hard as any other team they played. Track wasn't too shabby either. They performed extremely well in all their meets and gave all they had in strength and determination to the winnings of the school. As the year in sports came to a rapid closing, we looked back to how we did in all of those battles and can feel great about being apart of each and every one. We had made our school what it was and how it should have been. Look at us now, Chico Senior High, we've made you proud!

Ithough the school year began a week earlier, school spirit was not dampened. The pride and enthusiasm of the students was shown throughout the year in the participation in Chico High activities. One of the most essential parts of school spirit during the year was the railies. Pep railies really helped to promote school involvement, and student government was pleased with the class participation and attendance. According to Dave Yoskowitz, ASB Commissioner of Rallies.

the goal was to "incorporate new ideas into the rallies while also showing a lot of class." Railies definitely were interesting, with guests including Chico High's own version of Donny and Marie Osmond, all the way to so called "PV cheerleaders". While crowd numbers at football games were discouraging, other sports drew many spectators. This was possibly due to the first time. Another encour- body. aging aspect of Chico High's active year was the increase in club membership. Mrs. Ostrom, Activities advisor, felt very positive about the overall feeling at Chico High. The students were interested in what was happening. Club interest and involvement increased with four organizations participating in Football Homecoming activities. Chico High sponsored a very diverse and interesting calendar of events which was the fact that football games met with great enthusiasm and were held at Butte College for support by the entire student he 1984-85 cheerleading/songleading squads were truly outstanding. Against great odds, the four groups added a lot of pizazz and gave a lot of support to Chico's great athletes. Some of the problems they encountered were only having three football cheerleaders on one squad (which required them to take on more responsibility), ice-cold temperatures at Lassen, and mud at Red Bluff, The basketball cheerleaders were a little more fortunate, however, as they had help from that famous group, "The Red-Eye Rooters." Much of Chico's spirit was raised by Louis Tullius, football mascot, who brought more spark to raines than there has been in years. And Marilyn Felion, Basketball mascot, with her bubbly personality did a great job leading the rowdy crowds at games. We can only hope that the years to follow will compare to this year's squads!

think the football game is the only thing involved with the Almond Bowl, there is actually a whole week of activities and months of preparation leading up to the Chico High versus Pleasant Valley football game. Spirit week is intended to elevate school spirit before the "big game" and, more often than not, it succeeds. This success was evident in the junior class, who won the spirit stick for the first time. The spirited rally lead up to the game that evening. The junior varsity football team warmed up the crowd and boosted spirits as they upset the favored junior Vikes, 14-6 Coach John Martin credited the entire team with the win, saying it was a total team winning effort. lot of people don't know what ROP is. It has been confused as being a club, group, or even a class, when in fact, it is a state-funded educational system. Many people par-doubled at an astonishing rate. The main reason for such a growing interest is because of the experienced gained. Many employees look for job experience rather than education. In the banking course, students use actual teller machines. The students use basically all of the same supplies that are used in a real job. The program is very effective with about a 45% hirhere's Block C?" was an heard question around the Chico High campus. In the past Block "C has been one of the most active clubs on campus with a membership of around seventy people, all of whom had prover their sports excellence by earning a letter. Block "C" had entered candidates in both Football and Basketbal Homecomings, and even host ed several dances every year Unfortunately, in recent years their high level of activity began to drop off. This wave o inactivity reached a peak this year when an average of fourteen or fifteen people would show up at their noon time meetings. When asked about this. Mr. John Beck (advisor for the club) said that with over 300 students holding block "C's" the club was no longer something special to belong to. "You really have to care about something in orde to make it work. You have to want to do it."

They did a number of things to improve the school and surrounding community. The first major event was the annual canned food drive, sponsored by the Key Club, in cooperation with student government. There was a total of 3,000 cans donated and with a little help from the Kiwanas, they distributed them to the needy. Many annual events took place such as Christmas caroling at local hospitals and convalescent homes; the blood drive which saves many lives; and with a little help from Kiwanas, the Key clubbers helped park cars during the Silver Dollar Fair. But of all the activities and events to take place, the starting of a key club at Chico Junior High was the most significant. Students had a place to gain experience and ready themselves for the "mother" club, Chico Senior High's Key Club.

tudents from about 10 different cultures gathered on Tuesdays at lunch for a meeting of the International Students Club. At these meetings, students who normally didn't make friends easily because of language barrier or because they were different had a chance to make friends and share their cultures. Once a month the club had a special presentation from one of the students about his culture. Some of these presentations included Stephaine Rochfort, an American Indian who told about her culture and showed articles of authentic clothing. Another presentation was given by Monika Leuenberg from West Germany. She presented a slide show on her country, mainly of West Berlin. The other students were surprised with the hostility given off by the East Germans. Also, there was a presentation about Spain. These presentations helped the student learn about cultures that were foreign to them. Not only did it help those from different countries, but it also helped the students who were from an American heritage learn about places and people they might never see.

ard work paid off for 4 Chico High students who visited Washington D.C. from April 14-20. Melinda Sorensen, Alicia Thompson, Dave Smarion, Fred Vaissicca, and their teacher Monica Diamond, spent a week in our nation's capital, learning about our government with the Close-Up Program. The tuition of $775 per person was cut down to about $100 by the donations of local clubs such as the North Valley Lions Club. Also, we were the first school north of Fremont to receive a fellowship to defray costs. The Close-Up Foundation was so impressed with the hard working students that it provided funds for one teacher and assistance to a low income student.

984 and 1985 brought many new ideas, fads, and of course, sports to Chico High. There was an amazing amount of girls who showed up for varsity volleyball tryouts. Mr. Randy Gilzean, the varsity volleyball coach, was surprised at the physical talent of the players. "I thought it would be a tough season with few wins because most of the girls had never played on a team before this year." Coach Gilzean had never coached girls in volleyball but has taught men He claimed there was quite a difference. It was definitely a learning year for the players as well as the coaches, Mindy Screnson, a junior who played for the team, said that volleyball was a lot of fun this year. We all learned a lot, I am looking tupendous! That's the only way to describe our JV volleyball team. For the first year of having volleyball, Chico High did great. The Junior Varsity spikers finished their season with a 11-1 season. Their coach, Miss Allison Yates, did a great job of coaching them. The team had quite a bit of experience on the coaching end. Five of the JV players were outstanding and made it into Block C. "Practices in the gym were a lot of fun because made a lot of new friends on the team," said Angie Wellmen. "And having my sister Ronda as team manager helped my skills out a lot." The team manager was Ronda Wellman, who graduated with the class of 1984 from Chico High. Ronda did a great job helping the girls. Congratulations to the JV team who had a great season!

Long Season Proves Too Much For Panthers

had the basic pieces for a championship season. 60 people originally turned out, of which 17 were returning starters. The rest would fight for the remaining positions. The coaching staff had plenty of time to mold the team into form. The players had to endure two-a-day practices, 100°+ heat, extra sprints and lecturing coaches. The coaches had to push players to the limit so they would be ready to face the defending North Section Champs for their game. The Panthers defeated the Shasta High Wolves in a Saturday afternoon heatwave, with a stunning come-from-behind win. The pieces began to fall into championship form. The Panthers rolled up their next 4 opponents and prepared to take on the league. The Panthers took a number 1 ranking into Paradise and handed the Bobcats a 41-7 thrashing, To all it looked like the pieces had finally come together. The Panthers defeated Oroville 20-14 in a tough Saturday game. LP came into Panther territory in hopes of ur Chico High Panthers knocking off the #1 Panthers. They left with 35-0 defeat. The Panthers were on the road for their next game against that other school and barely escaped with 2-0 win. The pieces started to come unglued the next week with a 15-14 loss to Lassen, for the league title and disintegrated in the playoff, with 13-0 defeat, on a muddy field in Red Bluff.

There were a lot of talented and skilled players on the JV team, but talking to some JV's about football, one name comes to mind - David Espinosa. His position is running back, David has played organized football for three years. He became interested in football through the football superstars. "They make you want to get out there and play ... " He plane on playing football as long as he can, hopefully going professional. He says, "If I can, great!" The linemen, he feels, are the key to his success. "Everyone helps everyone else out." Coach Martin said of David, "He proved his skill and talent when he broke the game against P.V." David is one of the many outstanding athletes at Chico High and we are proud of him.

A Feeling of Togetherness

hen the girl's hockey team first put on their cleats and hit the field, there was no sure idea how the season would turn out. With two energetic coaches, strong returning seniors, and young juniors, the girls were set for a victorious season. The 1984 season began with a bang as the girls took charge with "a dominant offense and an aggressive defense," stated Stephanie Hill, junior. She went on to say "I have enjoyed the games but I'm looking forward to P.V. the most." With a final record of 9-2, the best could only get better. Behind the team's success was coach Julie Babb and her feeling of togetherness that involved every player on the team. Babb's squad showed that hockey is truly a team sport. They were family; sharing questions, problems, and answers. Debbie Jenkins, junior, had to say "our coach- off. Playing isn't the only part ing staff is excellent," when asked why she added "they're very supportive, they keep us together - no fighting is allowed." All of the players and the two coaches strengthened their unity by wearing the traditional hockey 'bear scares' wrist bands. They wore them all the time and never took them of hockey that is enjoyed while being on the team. Practices and bus rides were especially fun.

"Bus rides were fun because were no conflicts between the J.V.'s and us," commented senior Ingle Horton, "there were never any hassles or fights, they respected us and we respected them." Renee Letner, junior, didn't like away-games though, "I don't like traveling on those long bus rides, there's too much noise." Letner liked playing on the field, "it's fun to take out your aggressions on something that you're able to without getting into trouble." An overall view of the team shows a very hardworking group of people who went after some basic goals and made them. Chico High is very proud of our girls.

Togetherness was the main item that held our team together. Whether it be small bear scares (wrist bands) or a large group circle before a game, it had it's way of pulling our team together.

hat were those runners thinking about when they were faced with a grueling four mile run . . . all uphill? Beth Thomas, one varsity runner, said that it was often necessary to forget about the physical pain, and instead, "think about school or your dog." The cross country teams were definitely to be called a group of very dedicated athletes. They could often be seen running up Highway 32, or situation. There seemed to be struggling to reach the top of "Agony Hill", as one route was dubbed by the veteran varsity runners. Overall, both varsity teams had very successful dynamic team, they finished the seasons. The boys' and girls teams spent most of the season traveling to various meets, and went on one overnight trip to McKinleyville. The trip to McKinleyville seemed to be a definite highlight among many team members. One runner commented that the trip, "really pulled the team together and it was fun to run our races on the beach." The boys' team had a few problems to overcome, such as not enough junior and senior runners, but they overcame this problem, and ended the season second in their league. However, because of the lack of team runners they did not place in sections. If the boys' team had not enough members, the girls' team had just the opposite an abundance of varsity girl runners, and they had the largest team they have had in a long time. With such a strong, season second in their league and went on to place first in sections. The time and dedication required to be on these teams was great, but paid off in a successful year for Chico High.

verall I'm very pleased with the team," beamed Coach Kathy Haines. In spite of a slow start, the Girls varsity Basketball team soared to a very successful season as they captured second place in the EAL and went on to secitor playoff. Unity was a team goal; "I can t crdit our success to only a few members because everyone gave her best effort," explained Coach Haines, Added

Lynn Heimann, "Things started to happen when we worked together, not as individuals." Another team goal was expressed by Cathy Ahern: "We didn't want to get bogged down by worrying about winning, we wanted to concentrate instead on playing our best and having fun too." The team's dedicaiton led to a great season finish as they achieved their goals and even reached seciton playoffs!

Besides being a starting forward, Cathy was elected by her teammates to be team captain. She has been involved in basketball since ninth grade, but doesn't play in college. However, she would like to keep playing for fun. Chico High is privileged to have talented athletes such as Cathy Ahern.

Legend Retires

There is nothing I dislike about coaching basketball," Mr. Ken Piercy said with a smile However, after 25 years of coaching he has decided to resign from his position at Chico High Mr Piercy began his basketball career at the age of 10 and continued on to play ball at Chico High on league-leading teams. After graduating from Chico High Mr. Piercy played on championship teams at Chico State. His coaching career began in 1960 at Bidwell Junior High. In 1970 he transfered his coaching talents to Chico High, In 1976, Mr. Piercy led the Panthers to his first EAL championship, the title he has attained 8 out of 9 times since then. According to Coach Piercy his first EAL title was probably "the most gratifying experience of my career." The team was not expected to be a threat, but worked together to win the league. Mr. Piercy was also proud of the 84-85 team. "They were an outstanding group of boys," commented the coach, "who have been winning together for a long time." (a 41-7 record since 9th grade) Although Mr. Piercy's coaching career ended with the graduation of his youngest son, Jim, we will always remember him for his ability to turn a weak basketball program into a winning one

Experience Gained For J.V. Softball

orking hard was the key to JV softball. Coach John Beck found it rewarding to know that his girls worked hard, were willing to learn new things, and then improved in their skills. He felt the team and himself had accomplished something if the team had improved. They planned on their season going well. Fifteen freshman and thirty phomores tried out. That was a big number of girls to choose from. Coach Beck liked to keep team. With fifteen girls there was more learning, improving, and opportunity for everyone. Thirteen would have been nice, but then he didn't have as many substitutes. Coach Beck found no relationship between coaching football and softball because they were two totally different sports. Lassen was a team which might have been some trouble for our team because they had a summer program that helped develop their pitching skills. Chico had no such program so our team's pitching was not as strong Each girl put out her own special, powerful energy to try to win each and every game.

here was more to playing softball than just winning. Miss Kathy Haines, varsity girls softball coach, enjoyed working with a great group of hard working, fun loving ladies. The team consisted of about half seniors and half juniors with eight returning letter girls. Anticipation ran high as the team approached the season with one of the strongest infields in our history. Along with an impressive outfield, the two proved to be a winning combination. In the past, weak pitching had been a major problem. Miss Haines and the entire team worked with the intention of making this positron one of the most powerful ever, in order to overpower Pleasant Valley and Lassen, our two most difficult rivals. They didn't have enough time Each player was ready to rise to prepare for the game, but to the challenge and do her that didn't get their hopes best. Their first game didn't go down. ### Golf Gains Strength very year a group of people pull their clubs out of the closet and hit the golf course. These people, of course, are the people that make up Chico High's own golf team. Due to increased popularity the team boasted 18 players instead of the usual 15. Coach McDonaid hopes to win the EAL, the North Section, and even state. Mr. McDonald has been coaching golf for several years now and in those years he has learned that to be a team you have to respect and trust one another. In past years there hasn't been many people getting out to watch this sport. It was hoped this year more students would be able to get out to cheer their team to victory. Golf is a game which requires a lot of concentration. As Coach McDonald puts it "Concentration is the name of the game." In order to excel you have to practice for many years. Not many freshmen try out for the team. Coach McDonald especially encourages freshmen to join the golf team. In the past, freshmen have often proved themselves to be some of the best people on the team. When asked how he thought they would do in the EAL, Coach McDonald said "We'll have a good battle, and try to go all the way."

Tennis Troubles . . . Again

nce in a while a team cannot find a coach. Well, the tennis team can never seem to find someone to coach them. Year after year the team is on stand-bye waiting to start practicing. The tennis team is usually made up of 12 to 15 players. This year around 20 players signed up. Although there weren't any cuts, only 8 to 10 people usually competed against teams from different schools. After much suspense, Chico High's tennis team finally procured someone to coach them. uniors participated in many activities. Some prominent ones were going through the process of ordering their class rings, building a unique quad, participating in varsity sports, getting involved in the spirit rallies, and visiting the state capital. During the slower moments of the year they spent their time taking in some of the local sights. Some of the most popular hangouts were the Top Flight Ballroom and the Graduate. uniors did a number of things on their lunch break. Some of the juniors walked downtown and bought their lunch at Togo's, Orange Julius, The Pacific Cookie Company, etc. . . . Some drove to McDonald's, Burger King, and Burger Hut for some food that was quick and cheap. Most of us stayed on campus though, and bought our lunch either in the cafeteria or at the snack bar. Many juniors ate their lunch on the quad and visited with their friends while others took their lunch to their classrooms to eat while fin shing homework There were a few juniors that used their lunch break for other things like drawing in the art room, practicing their music in the band and choir rooms, and studying and reading in the library. ## New Junior Demands.

he juniors had an easy year dealing with academics because they didn't have any competencies to pass. But they did have to get grades that would make them acceptable for colleges. So most of the worries the juniors experienced dealt with passing Spanish 2 or U.S. History. Some juniors might have taken the S.A.T. which was the biggest thing they had to deal with.

Zero Period Tested.

7:00 a.m. history class? Who in their right mind would get up an extra hour earlier to go to a 7th class at school? "A lot of students would," said earlybird U.S. history teacher Charles Alexander, who teaches the class. "These kids have thir own reasons for signing up, but they work just as hard as the students in my other classes and do just as well."

"In the beginning of the school year I expected them to have slightly lower scores, but believe it or not, their's were the highest." One of the most interesting pieces of trivia is that almost half of the class is involved in school journalism in one way or another. Whether it be on the yearbook or newspaper staffs, or in photo journalism. Having the opportunity to take a required class in the morning gave space for a desired elective. "I wanted to stay in yearbook but I couldn't have fit it into my schedule if it wasn't for this class," said Carrie Whitcher here were many ways in which the juniors showed their spirit. Dress up days were an example of this. They had many opportunities to show their individuality and dress up just for fun. They dressed up in everything from nerds on Nerd Day, to survivors of a nuclear holocaust on Halloween. Their diversified interests were demonstrated in the ingenious costumes they came up with. One of the reasons we had a great year was because of the participation on the dress up days.

Success At Its Best

his or her part to make the year a success. Many juniors took part in making the junior quad. They built the frame for the quad at Lisa Gilchrist's house, then moved it section by section to the Chico High campus. They painted and put the finishing touches on it, then there it was

. The Hall of Justice. The juniors then worked together on the homecoming skit. Narrated by Louis Tullius, the skit turned out to be a great success. Other juniors also helped by cleaning the campus and by working on the yearbook and the newspaper staffs. Last but not least, they showed how spirited they were by participating during spirit week and on dress-up days. Since spirit is so strong at Chico High, this participation was very vital.

ongress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion ... " This quote from the U.S. Constitution has been interpreted by some to mean that no religious functions are to be allowed in public schools. In September of '84 Chico High School found themselves with a new group, called the Fellowship of Christian Students or FCS. This group felt that they had a right to meet in a classroom, because of a new Act called the Equal Access Act, passed in July of '84. The main idea of this Act was equal treatment. This meant the school couldn't discriminate against students conducting meetings. on the basis of religious, political, philosophical, or any other content of speech at such meetings. Chico High School didn't know exactly how to handle this. On one side they had this new Act saying they couldn't discriminate against religious groups and on the other side they had the constitution saying they couldn't allow religious functions at school. So Mr. Williams asked FCS to meet outside until December when Chico Unified School District would give their final decision on the forming of this group. On December 19th at a meeting filled with concerned students and parents, the School Board gave the Fellowship of Christian Students the "O.K." to use district property to meet in if they filled out the proper forms.

he sophomore class of the 1984-85 school year was very enthusiastic and contributed a lot of spirit to Chico High. Due to their large class size, they had a lot of potential as a group, from the start. They won Sweepstakes during Football Homecoming 1984, because they had so much participation. The sophomores were also involved with clubs, sports, and many community organizations. The 1984-85 sophomores proved that they had Chico High VITALITY!

unch was an exciting part of the sophomores first year of high school. Many stayed on campus; congregating around the snackbar, or taking part in noontime activities. Some of those activities were a pie-eating contest, a halloween dress-up contest, and three homecoming relay race contests. The sophomores also spent a lot of time downtown at the usual teenage hangouts, such as Togo's, Orange Julius, and the Pacific Cookie Co. One thing is for sure, sophomores love to EAT!

cademics for the sophomores was a change from Junior High. They were required to take Health and Safety, Driver's Ed., Sophomore English, and P.E. playing with "Recessie-Annie" was one of the highlights of Heath, besides the first aid films. Driver's training was the most exciting because it meant they would soon be getting their licenses. Driver's training was also a lot more fun than Mr. Main's movies and seatbelt stories! Sophomore P.E. was also a favorite class. They didn't have to run the lap or mile, but of course, there may have been extra calisthenics if anyone messed around. There were new sports like field hockey, fencing, or badminton, to try out too. In English 120, or Sophomore English, they may have read: The Pearl, To Kill a Mockingbird, Lord of The Flies, Red Badge of Courage, The Scarlet Letter, or Bless the Beast and The Children. Learning how to write a formal letter and give an oral report were also things learned in English 120, besides the general grammar and essay format. The sophomores did well during their first year of high school and they're sure to survive the rest.

New Age, New Opportunities!

s the freshmen became sophomores at Chico High, one thing became more and more apparent to them. FREEDOM! Most sophs. turned 16 somewhere in 1984 or 1985, and as we all know, 16 is a magical age. First of all, you can get a "real" job at 16, and you can also get a "real" license so you can drive to your new job. Many of the sophomores took advantage of their new freedom and started working in the community. For example, Joe Tilton got a job at Gallencamp's shoe store. And many tried volunteer work at Enloe Hospital, Two Chico High students even started their own business! John Roach and Casey Simpson started a "hightops personalization" business. The two have designed several pairs since summer. There were many others who joined the working force in 1984-85 and found new opportunities!

he first day of high school. Remember it? Millions of thoughts running through your head; ... will I find my classes ... will I see anyone I know . . . will I be able to get my locker open ... will the seniors bother me? Well, after the first day it seemed like a breeze and school was actually fun. You had a nutrition break twelve minutes long, open campus, after-game dances, rallies, club parties, college night, dress-up days, Homecoming, Day On The Quad, and the seniors weren t as bad as you had anticipated. The fun seemed like it would never end. So many trying, hard classes, and so many fun ones. Driver's Training was one favorite, and physical fitness tests were a lot easier. Remember all the sophomore English competencies you had friends forgotten.

ur Math Department has faced a lot of new changes not only with the growing number of students but with the changes in requirements. With the class of 1987 coming in, which has 100 more students than the juniors or seniors, math class enrollments jumped incredibly. #### Everyone Needs a Touch of the Arts t is true that everyone needs a little art in their lives Whatever the medium, we need to express ourselves. The art department at Chico High realizes this and offers a large curriculum of outstanding classes taught by talented teachers. For example, Mr. Mike Simpson, department chairman and teacher of drawing and painting, presents his material with skill and patience. He keeps his classes relaxed and comfortable, giving his students the perfect atmosphere to create. He is concerned, though that because of stricter graduation requirements, some students won't be able to take art classes all three years in high school. This > in its power to insure the survival of this excellent department isn't really fair to the people who are considering art as a career. A related problem, as Mr. Mike Ramsden has noted, is that Chico High has no kiln, and without a kiln, the students in ceramics classes really can't do much. He hopes to get one in the near future. Despite these difficulties. great teachers like Mr. Ramsden and Mr. Simpson continue to provide excellent instruction and exceptional artists are produced. The school must do everything a new modern look to it. With a new pick-up truck and a more efficient greenhouse, the Ag department earned more money from the plant sales. Mr. Clarke had to go to Reno and buy a new supply of flower pots for the steady demand for plants that his classes plant. Many people commented about how good our school looked. "It's been a while now, and the campus is at a final stage," Mr. Don Clarke had to say. "all of the trees and shrubs are all growing and are in their final place." Many parents and students have enjoyed staying around just for the beauty of the campus. Some of the things in the Ag classes have been reported as "big items." The shop had been reported of making a sawmill, and Animal Science had been shown how pigs are castrated. "It was pretty neat," commented Melissa O'Gwin "animals are so interesting, 'cause they're so much like humans." Many of the students went on field trips to the Chico State Farm These trips gave the/students a first hand experience of what a farm was like, and how it works. Mr. Clark thought that this year was very strong, and looked very promising. There were a few Ag enrichment students who were always there to help-out whenever needed.

Center Specializes in Caring and Preparing

ne unique aspect of CSHS is the Learning Center. It is designed to aid a broad range of students, anywhere from the physically handicapped to those who need academic and/or social attention. Mr. Land and his aide Mr. Martin are dedicated counselors/teachers/friends, offering highly individualized guidance. They also teach a variety of curriculum and tutor "wherever there's a need." According to Mr. Land, a major goal of this program is "to build students' self- esteem and make them feel better about school and themselves." The center also aims to prepare students for the outside world by developing their skills and helping them deal with problems. Finally, students are urged to find and keep jobs, since working boosts one's self-esteem and confidence, and is a great way in which to become a positive, productive force. Students may take from three to six periods per day, depending on whether or not they would like other classes

hoto Journalism is a unique class consisting of many different individuals who share a common love of photography. Photo J shoots for the Red & Gold and the Caduceus (not for personal use) and is offered in a two-year sequence. The first 2-3 weeks are spent exploring basic theory and techniques. Then students move on to assignments and lab work, and finally to processing and developing. One student comments, "I enjoy taking the photos, but wish there was more room to be creative." Responsibility is important, and must be maintained beyond the schoolday. Flexibility is also demanded, as many activities must be shot on evenings and weekends. About two thirds of the class takes place out of the classroom, leaving students with free time during class. This brought comments ranging from "It's great because I can kick back and do mv homework" to "It can get pretty boring - there's nothing to do" to "I love the freedom and the relaxed atmosphere." Photo J is sponsored mainly by the English and Art departments, the Red & Gold, and the Caduceus, but the budget may be supplemented by other

Students may choose to use personal 35mm equipment, however school equipment and facilities are provided. The dark room at CSHS boasts 13 enlargers and, according to instructor Pat Wismer, contains more sophisticated dark room facilities than colleges. Former some graduates of this program have gone on to work in photography shops, and some have even become professional photographers with their own businesses. The 1984-1985 staff had only three returning members but the new staffers were eager to learn and willing to work. All members had a basic artistic sense and were dedicated to producing high quality photographs.

ooperation and teamwork are the keys in creating a successful Red & Gold publication. I enjoy working with people toward a common goal," stated editor Jill Leger. As the school year began, students were busy learning the basics of building a newspaper which included becoming familiar with journalistic styles, exploring layout designs and rules, fitting heads, and discussing the do's and don'ts of writing a good article. "At times the atmosphere in Red & Gold tended to become chaotic as there were many different activities going on simultaneously," commented instructor

Red & Gold receives only $500 to help cover a $6,000-$8,000 yearly cost, so the remaining costs of producing the bi-weekly paper must be covered by selling ads. The 1984-1985 staff was a relatively new staff with only six returning members out of 30. Even though they were inexperienced they were creative and enthusiastic. The Red & Gold staff does an important service to CSHS by taking the responsibility to relay news to the students. The general feeling of the staff is reflected in Jill Leger's words: "Creating the were designed to help these future adults make it on their own. We all agree that reading, writing, and arithmetic skills are essential, but Home Economics curriculum included a variety of courses to benefit everyone in our complex adult society, regardless of his or her chosen life style. In Independent Living, some of the things we learned were how to find a place to live and how to plan nutritional meals. Clothing class is a beginners class for students with little or no experience. There is also Intermediate Clothing class, a class for students wishing to perfect and expand their beginning skills. Sewing for Fun is a class for ome Economics classes students with varied sewing experience to work individually without competition. Last but most popular with students are Parenthood and Foods, Parenthood is a one-semester class designed to let the student explore the role of parents in our society, pregnancy, parental care, infant and child development, family planning and children in crisis (death, divorce, abuse, and illness). Foods is a year-long class emphasizing in nutrition, the basic food groups and principles of food preparation, meal planning, serving family meals and making the most of our money. ost people probably think about wood shop when they hear the words Industrial Arts. However, there is a lot more to our Industrial Arts Department than at first meets the eye. We have everything from drafting to auto shop. Within these boundaries there are basic and advanced mechanical drawing, drafting and graphic arts classes, as well as R.O.P. electronic project labs and theories for beginning and students. Finally there is auto shop and, of course, wood shop. With a list of possible courses as comprehensive as this, one would assume that all are as were being covered. This is not necessarily true.

"Industrial Art classes are suffering in our state, because of the trend we are seeing of emphasizing the teaching of basic skills. There is a misunderstanding about what we teach. We teach applications of basic skills as well as vocational skills needed by the students when they go out into the real world looking for jobs. There are no more important basic skills than these," states Mr. Ron Pope. Along with this trend advanced comes less money being given to the Industrial Arts Department for funding its various projects. This trend is more than just a local thing. It is affecting the nation as a whole. Many people feel that it is not necessarily a good thing.

Music Department Plays With Winning Spirit

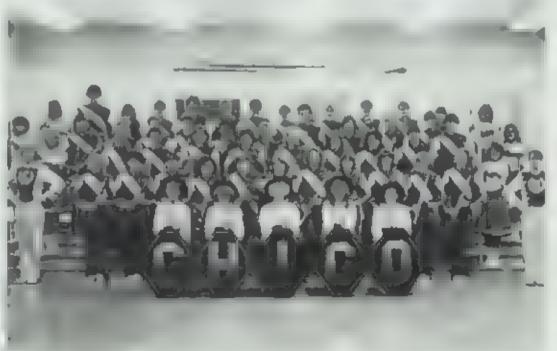

hico High's Music Department is a group of very talented musicians. The band, orchestra, and choir excelled in all their musical endeavors.

"The music excelled." — Mr. Duarte

The orchestra started the year playing "The Nutcracker Suite" and the music displayed the talents of the group really well. Choir worked on their presentation for the Christmas concert from the beginning and, once they found enough guys, the musical sound was complete The marching band performed well under the direction of Parade Drum Major Sara Waters and Field Show Drum Major Christina Rodgers, In parade competition, the band took third place both times they competed in spite of almost losing their practice place. During practice one cold October morning, a Chico Police Officer told the band they were practicing illegally. After a few days of lost practice and a lot of red tape, the band was clear to march once more. "It was unnecessary for them to stop us since we've been using that street for 17 years," was the remark of sophomore sax player Michael Weaver. When not on the street, the band was on the field. Field shows were new to most of the band members since there haven't been many done in the past, but the overall reaction was people liked them. The Olympic theme which was displayed in the field shows was symbolic of the spirit of Chico High. We hope in the years to come the Music Department will continue to play with the winning spirit.

positive outlook was equally evident in the Business Department, a very important part of the CHS curriculum. Classes taught here were accounting, typing at all levels, basic business, and work experience. Mrs. Janice Peterson taught basic business and accounting skills. Mr. Jim Panek taught typing and instructed work experience classes. Mr. Piercy taught typing J, II, and III. The Computer Age came to Advanced Typing when a quarter of the year-long class was dedicated to word processing on computers. This was a big step in beginning to modernize the business classes, with computer technology being so very important today. The accounting programs also expect to have more computer involvement in the future. As a graduate from Chico High himself, Mr. Piercy describes the school impartially as, "Undoubtedly the best school in Northern California."

B.C.S.P. Excited About The Phonic Ear

C.S.P. (Butte County School Program) is designed to help the deaf, hearing and visually impaired, and students with language problems. There were nine students involved in the program.

Mrs. Monica Diamond and Mr. Bob Callahan team taught in the department for the hearing impaired. Dorothy Combs and Carol Holmes were aides for the classes. Doug Evans was the solo teacher for the visually impaired students.

Mrs. Diamond had been involved with Special Education for ten years. This was her third year at Chico High, Mr. Callahan had taught here one year and has now finished his second. "Things went better this year. Because I was more familiar with the students, teachers, and the program," said Mr. Callahan.

"We are parents, teachers, and friends to the students."

The teachers involved in this program had a special job in dealing with these students. Mrs. Diamond, Mr. Caliahan, and Mr. Evans, along with the aides, not only taught these students, but as Mrs. Diamond put it, "We were responsible for coordinating all students' classes and schedules necessary for graduation."

A new addition to the equipment that was used in the hearing impaired section of the program was, The Phonic Ear. The Phonic Ear is an FM (Frequency Modulated) system that consisted of a teacher transmitter, a student receiver and a charging unit. This device helped the hearing impaired students hear what the teacher was teaching. The teacher wore a transmitter that was wireless and sent FM sound waves to the receiver worn by the student. The signal, the teachers voice, was picked up by the receiver and was amplified to the most comfortable listening level of the student. This was the hearing impaired students solution to better learning. Mrs. Diamond explained that, "All of the other teachers were very excited about The Phonic Ear." The Phonic Ear enabled the hearing impaired students to take a giant step towards better communication and education.

Health and safety: Beginning with the basics

ealth and Safety is one of the few classes at Chico High that every student is required to take (and pass) in order to graduate. "It is taught in order to teach kids daily health practices and how to identify the signs and symptoms that indicate a disease or illness," says Mr. Scott Heaslip. Another reason Health and Safety is a requirement is the section of CPR and First Aid. After completing this course says Mr. Heaslip "a person could in fact, save another persons life." Statistics show that every day at least

"The meaning of this class is to understand the daily health practices and identify the signs and symptoms that indicate a disease or illness. It could very well affect a persons life, in the area of C.P.R. and first aid. A person could in fact save another person's life."

one life is saved through the use of CPR and/or First Aid. "It's not a real hard class," says Mr. Heaslip "but it's one that requires a lot of attention on the part of the students." Health and Safety is taught in conjunction with Drivers Education. Drivers Ed is an elective class that prepares teenagers for the responsibility of driving. Each year it is full of eager kids ready to learn the rules of the road. This year it was packed full, due mainly to the large influx of new sophomores.

P.E. has a smooth year

he P.E. department has undergone several changes. Two new teachers, Mr. Keith Lockwood and Mrs. Nancy Ostrom joined the department bringing with them new ideas and adding life to the same old units. Perhaps this is why almost 120 Juniors and Seniors signed up for P.E. Department head Kathy Haines said she was very happy with in the gym it was graciously this large turnout, but she hopes that enrollment continue to increase in the future. Each year the Physical Education department must replace all of the damaged and lost equipment from the previous year, plus they must keep the gym facilities functional and in good shape. Needless to say this can become a time consuming and very expensive process. So, when the Coca-Cola Company offered to donate a brand-new clock to replace the broken one eople at Chico High have to spend money and to fulfill this need they must work. Two things happen when you work. First, a person's monetary base is increased, and second, one is exposed to people and things from the "real" world. These educational experiences that the students have, return to our school through the semantics of speech and other forms of expression. If these life changing experiences did not return selling ads and raised a lot of to Chico High, we (the students) would exist in a world so far from reality that you could draw a parallel with the twilight zone. Amazingly enough, to design and create a yearbook, you need the rare commodity money. The funds needed are acquired from three sources: yearbook sales, government student through the selling of advertisements, in years past, the selling of ads had always been a problem. However, along with this new book came a new idea: The idea of an ad staff. This staff did a great job of money. They deserve much thanks. The computer industry finally hit the backbone of America, when it helped in the production of the '85 Caduceus. This massive entrance occurred in the making of the index. The index editor constructed and put to good use a computer program that indexed and typed out the names of all the students. This brilliant innovation made the job much easier. As you turn the pages in the succeeding section, take notice of the unique form with which the ads have been composed. Without the money earned from those advertisements, there would have been no '85 Caduceus.

Yearbook Endures Radical Changes

kay guys, get to work!" This was a commonly heard phrase among the yearbook staff members. Creating a yearbook proved to be a great challenge, and a great experience. We all learned that there is a lot more in creating a yearbook than taking pictures and writing copy. There are interviews to be given, layouts to be drawn, and oh so much more! Many hours were spent in the creation of the 1985 Caduceus, but it was worth it. In June of 1985, we received the expected results, a radically different yearbook! Of course, as in anything peer-produced, there are many pros and cons. At the beginning of the year, everything went smoothly. The editors and Mr. Kincheloe attended a yearbook conference in Sacramento. We learned many new techniques and got many new ideas. We then went on to incorporate these new techniques and ideas in creating the 1985 Caduceus. But as the year went on, we found ourselves falling farther and farther Deadlines behind. missed, and in the end we had to work and push ourselves even harder than ever. Our goal was to get every student at Chico High in the yearbook. Of course, this is a near impossible task to complete. But, we did our best, and we were very pleased with the results. Chico High holds many memories for all of us. We are just trying to help you hold on to those memories, preserve them, and cherish them.

ALMA MATER

Our strong bands
Can n'er be broken
Formed at Chico High
Far surpassing
Wealth unspoken
Sealed by friendship's tie

Raise the chorus Speed it onward Til the hills reply Hail to thee Our Alma Mater Hail to Chico High

When in future Years we're turning Leaves of memory Then we'll find Our hearts returning Chico High to thee
